

Frontier Culture Museum of Virginia Announces Major Project with Planned American Journey Gallery

The new 40,000 square foot building includes a permanent exhibit gallery, rotating exhibit space, research library, education spaces, visitor services, gift shop and more.

Staunton, VA (July 2024) – The Frontier Culture Museum in Staunton is pleased to announce an upcoming major expansion, The American Journey Gallery. The future centerpiece of the 300-acre living history museum will include a 10,000 square foot permanent exhibit that encapsulates our nation’s evolution. The Gallery will explore the history, circumstances and people that created our country and expand upon the themes and programs of the existing outdoor exhibits.

“For thirty-five years the Frontier Culture Museum of Virginia has allowed millions of visitors to explore America’s origins. Now we are constructing the American Journey Gallery to elevate the stories of triumphs and challenges that created our nation” said Peggy Sheets, Chair of the Board of Trustees.

The Gallery will also include flexible spaces for student classrooms, adult and senior programming, collections storage and management and an indoor/outdoor pavilion.
